RAISING FROGS IS A REAL INDUSTRY

Frog culture has become an industry in the Hawaiian Islands where the U. S. Department of Agriculture assisted in establishing it as such and where two boys, H. I. frog clubs have been formed to encourage frog farming.

This information is given in a clipping sent by C. W. Brown of Frostdrop, formerly of Hilo, who writes: "As frog-catching is a new industry in the Lake region, you better get after it to do things there like they do in Hawaii. We used those new varieties of large frogs, I understand that one of the new varieties, weighs over 2 pounds when dressed."

FARM NOTES

Good work for more intelligent and profitable farming has been done by the Pahokee Rotary Club. The efforts have all related to truck gardening and to no other branch of farming. A resident of Pahokee suggested that the club might do something to promote the poultry industry, or, at least, the raising of more chickens.

Last year the editor of The Everglades News got an idea that information should be given about the raising of chickens. The editor of the community about chicken raising and the extension division of the University of Florida was used to send a colored man here to work among the colored people and a man did come but his stay was very short and he was doubtful if he did much good. While the white landlady is away on their summer vacation their colored tenants and share-croppers might be raising chickens or growing summer crops. But the colored people need instruction as to how to raise chickens and they need it and it may be that the colored demonstration agent can be assigned for work here again this summer and can stay for a week or more.

The upper Everglades needs more than anything else in a big packing house equipped with all the modern machinery and operated by an experienced man who will buy field-run vegetables for cash and pack the vegetables in his own selling in his own way.

They agree on this. The growers, land owners, buyers and business men in all lines say that the raising of vegetables is a system under which the grower is relieved of the necessity of grading and packing his stuff and under which a cash market is established at a packing house where the grower can get the best price for his produce. It is a system that has been in operation for many years and it is a system that has been successful in many other parts of the world.

This kind of a packing house will run on all kinds of vegetables on lima beans, peppers, eggplants, peas, cabbage and corn as well as on the various varieties of beans and tomatoes, and it must have a pre-cooling plant.

By no other process can the production of production be brought about, for experience has shown that some kinds of vegetables must be pre-cooled, and a grower cannot be expected to produce vegetables that cannot be pre-cooled. They have to have a grower. An hand-grader his beans in the field and he cannot pre-cool his field and he cannot pre-cool his field.

Some vegetables have to be pre-cooled, like tomatoes, and that requires that there be a packing house, and if there has to be a packing house for tomatoes, the packing house must be complete and able to handle all the other kinds of vegetables in proper order to grade the vegetables in the manner the buyers say it ought to be graded and pack it and grade it and get it in the cars in proper shape, pre-cooled if necessary. Growers cannot fairly be expected to do all of these things themselves.

WHAT PEOPLE SAY

Dr. W. J. Buck of Belle Glade: "The success of this Flower Show makes me proud to be a resident of the upper Everglades."

B. Elliott of Pahokee: "The reason I became one of the guarantors on a Chautauque for Pahokee next year was this: I'll grant you that the opening play of the Chautauque this year was poor, but the play given on the last night was good. I've paid $2 for a ticket for a single performance of a play so better than one of the plays that was given in the 1931 series. If a ticket for the season costs only $2.50, the buyer gets so much in the series that he can afford it if one or two of the numbers in the series is bad; he still gets his money's worth or more. More than that, the community deserves some entertainment of the character the Chautauque gives and I don't know of any other way the community can get it except through the Chautauque. There, degenerate you, does that answer your question?"

SPORT MODEL CARS WIN PUBLIC FAVOR

One of the significant trends in the automotive field, evident during the past year or two and certain to be more pronounced than ever this motoring season, is the evolution in popular favor toward the sport deluxe type car. Popularized on the college campus, the "dotted up" automobile represents a constantly growing proportion of this year's output, with the increase in favor meaning gradually lowering prices due to volume points out H. Klinger, vice-president and general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company.

Only a relatively short time ago the sport car represented something of a novelty for two reasons—only a limited few wanted it, and the manufacturer—particularly the volume manufacturer—could not include it in his production schedules because of the necessarily high price which they would have had to place on this type by reason of that limited demand. "Fourth, largely, made up the purchaser of the sport car because of the individuality the car expressed. Elders ching to the dignity of the closed class as against the informal, sporty model.

"But here, as elsewhere, youth won out. The demand for sport cars grew. The manufacturer found a way to incorporate their production in his program. He even went further. He developed the making of the sport car because of the individuality the car expressed. Elders ching to the dignity of the closed class as against the informal, sporty model.

"Few realize the hold deluxe models have today on the auto-buying public. The truth is, as represented by Chevrolet, that when our 1931 line is rounded out, exactly half the models in it will have sport equipment."

"Another interesting development in connection with deluxe models is their constantly decreasing purchase price. Originally they were usually the most expensive model of any manufacturer. He made too few of them to permit the dealer to carry a large stock of them. Just as once closed models cost more than the open types because more of the latter were produced. Today the deluxe closed model costs a very little more than the same standard body type. In some instances it costs less than other standard closed models in a manufacturer's line. The present-day volume demand for deluxe models is responsible. We are now carrying the killing, was arrested at South Bay Saturday night by Deputy Lawrence and was in county jail Monday.

FARMERS BUY ONLY FORDS, CHEVROLETS

Truck farmers in the upper Everglades aren't buying high-priced automobiles any more, and therefore a charge that used to be made against them doesn't apply any more.

It used to be said that most of the farmers were tenants and share-croppers who came in and stayed a few months and made a winter crop and several thousand dollars and then bought a Buick or a Cadillac or a Lincoln car and "dough-balled it" back where it came from to show their wife's relatives how rich they were. And, according to the charge, they were bad broke and borrowed a few hundred dollars on their cars to put in another bean crop. That was why there were so few good dwelling houses.

That may or may not have been the case in the past; it certainly isn't the case now.

Inquiry at Pahokee reveals not one purchase in two years of an car other than a Ford or a Chevrolet by any man who is exclusive. A truck farmer. Such cars other than Fords or Chevrolets that have been bought were bought by persons who had business enterprises. Along with this condition goes the building and improvement of dwelling houses.

In a recent issue of The Everglades News the amount of water discharged by different canals in cubic feet per second is given. For the North New River as 101 and the Miami as 107. This is possibly correct where the measurements are taken. However, this is true of the flow of the North New River canal below where the Belle Glade pours its water from the North New River into its channel. It is this added amount of water which is forced into the North New River canal, obstructed as it is already by hyacinth jams and the dam at lower course, a constantly threatens the settler's crops with destruction from excess water. This statement is not made in criticism of any official, but in the hope of inducing the state to correct a condition that is calculated to land us all in the poor house.

George Friese and his sister and her husband and daughter spent some hours looking up some of George's friends and looking over the burial mounds of Oklawaha. Mr. and Mrs. Andre and friends, now residing at Miami, were week end guests at the Covells, returning a week ago Sunday to the Magic City.

Deputy Sheriff Russell Fisher paid an official call recently, looking for a missing man, Bill Wellington, whose car was found standing for several days on the highway between South Bay and Belle Glade.

Maureen and son and Anderson, employees of the Penny bakery at Miami, surprised their friend, Peter Knudsen with a short visit last Sunday.

J. C. Carruthers from Pahokee resumed his interrupted career in operations on the east side of the canal during the week end raising the sunken barge.

In a recent issue of The Everglades News the amount of water discharged by different canals in cubic feet per second is given. For the North New River as 101 and the Miami as 107. This is possibly correct where the measurements are taken. However, this is true of the flow of the North New River canal below where the Belle Glade pours its water from the North New River into its channel. It is this added amount of water which is forced into the North New River canal, obstructed as it is already by hyacinth jams and the dam at lower course, a constantly threatens the settler's crops with destruction from excess water. This statement is not made in criticism of any official, but in the hope of inducing the state to correct a condition that is calculated to land us all in the poor house.
